

EARLY VISITORS AT OLD ORCHARD

Many Improvements Made in Maine Resort in Preparation for Big Crowds

HOTEL MEN SEE BIG SEASON

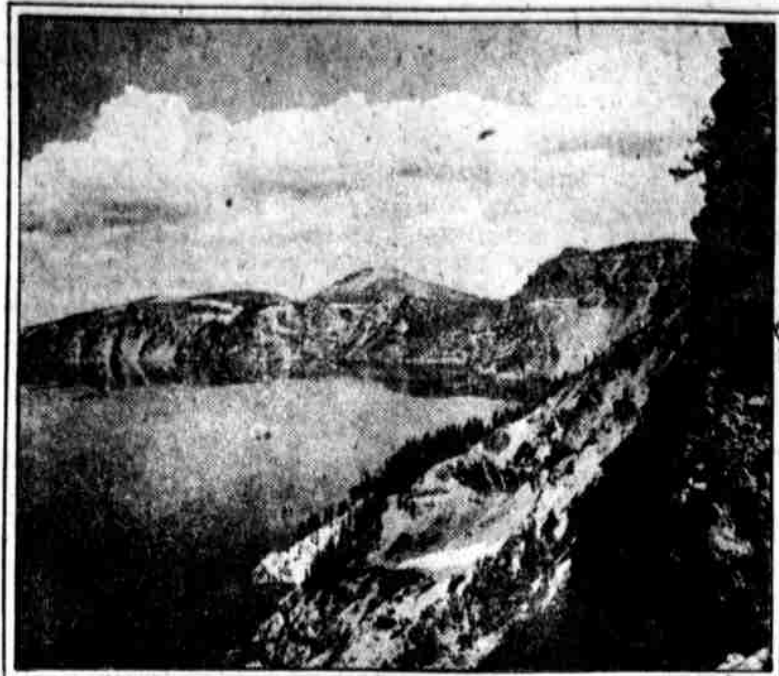

Old Orchard Beach, Me., June 16.—Old Orchard business men and members of the hotel association are looking forward to the biggest season in the history of the resort. Already record crowds have been in evidence warm Sundays and holidays.

Nearly all the cottages are rented and many of the occupants settled for the summer. Regular visitors should write to their favorite hotels immediately, as accommodations are going to be hard to secure.

Charles E. Usen, owner of the amusement lot, has made improvements, and the latest addition to his attractions is an old mill. The Seashore Theatre, which opened in last winter from the weight of snow, has been remodeled and is now larger and airier than before.

The real estate market has been unusually active during the spring, and among the more important transactions are the purchase of the Frontenac block and hotel on Old Orchard street by D. E. Callahan, of Lawrence, who is making improvements.

The Ingleside Hotel, on East Grand avenue, was recently sold to J. W. Lynch, of Lawrence, Mass. M. E. Kelee has sold the Western House, on Old Orchard street, to W. H. Fieldhouse, of Andover, Mass. The Grandview House, on West Grand avenue, has been bought by Miss Agnes A. Silby, of Burlington, Me. The Parsons block, on Old Orchard street, owned by W. H. Parsons, has been purchased by the Paradise Hotel, of Biddeford, who also bought

OCEAN GROVE LURES AS THE 'HAPPY CITY'

Wide Range of Possibilities for Summer Diversion as All
Hotels Open

HOP TO JAZZ BAND TUNES

Ocean Grove, June 16.—Offering the widest range of possibilities for summer diversion and fulfilling every expectation of the visiting summer throngs, Ocean Grove day by day makes more complete its standing as "The Happy City."

The famous resort, which is noted alike for its religious institutions and its elaborate programs of high-class entertainment, just now is completing all plans for the season's activities and settling down to the interesting idea of having a good time. The schedule of important events at the big auditorium has just been announced and presents a list of brilliant grand opera stars, a number of prominent lecturers and many other features which go to round out the most complete program yet offered the summer visitors of the north Jersey coast.

Although the New Jersey Supreme Court has temporarily restrained the new borough from putting into operation the new form of government recently approved by the people, pending a decision as to the constitutionality of the legislation under which the change was made, this fact is not in any way retarding the plans of the good folk of Ocean Grove in their efforts to improve local conditions and make an already delightfully attractive resort still more attractive. Officers of the new borough were to have been elected this week, and just as the time for the election had been picked and the plans had been nicely completed the validity of the measure incorporating the township meeting city as a borough was attacked. A postponement of the elections was ordered and now Ocean Grove is merely marking time in matters political, while the good folk are busying themselves setting their house to rights for the coming weeks of entertainment and merriment.

Enjoys Early Season

Ocean Grove this year has enjoyed a notable early season, and there is every indication that the entire summer will be the gayest in the history of the resort. Caruso, Lenora Sparkes, Florence Macbeth and Mischa Elman are among the noted stars who will be heard in concert in the big auditorium this summer. Lenora Sparkes will make the premier appearance of the four. She is to sing on the night of July 3. These grand opera stars and the violinist are but a few of the many prominent entertainers who will be seen and heard during the season. Popular entertainments will be interspersed with lectures by men of prominence, including Colonel John C. Gilman, Dr. Cortland Myers and Maurice Francis Egan, former ambassador to Denmark. The Grand Hotel association concert will be heard August 10.

In its religious provisions the program is of unusual importance. Some bishops of the Methodist Church will participate in the summer program in the auditorium, the tabernacle and the various other centers of religious work.

Meetings of a varied nature for the children and young people feature the schedule. The plans embrace the retention of virtually all the notable religious features of past seasons.

The services will be officially opened on June 20 and will continue through-out the season until September 12, on which date the camp meeting program will close. The closing of the religious services will not mean the termination of the vacation season here.

Hotel Association Active

The efforts of the Ocean Grove Hotel Association to lengthen the season, the success of which is evidenced in the early season crowds which already have invaded the hotel and cottage colony, are expected to be productive also of much late-season activity. It is largely with this thought in view that the hotel association is launching an extensive advertising campaign which is designed to tell the world of the many advantages of Ocean Grove and its leadership among the leading resorts of America.

Social and sporting activities were revived with the reopening of the summer hotels and cottages, and mid-June finds the summer folk enjoying a merry whirl of interesting events for the season. The swimming pool and bathing beaches are popular, the various centers of social activity are gay with the many events that are being given for the entertainment of the early season throngs, and altogether Ocean Grove is a good place to be these days.

The opening of the North End Hotel, again under the management of Robert M. Watt, will leave nothing necessary to the full resumption of summer activities but the official opening of the religious and entertainment program at the auditorium.

Dancing to Jazz Music

Ocean Grove is gradually but surely overcoming the general impression that a vacation in Ocean Grove meant the donning of sackcloth and ashes, the recitation of Psalms and the singing of hymns. And now that one dares to show the gliding red cover of the best seller and it is becoming known throughout the world that in Ocean Grove one can enjoy a real honest-to-goodness dance with an up-to-date southland jazz band banging out the rhythmic flow of harmony the resort is coming into its own. And to some there are indications that these attractions make for the fuller promotion of the religious activities in the camp-meeting city while detracting from them but little.

There are many who believe that the progress of Ocean Grove has been retarded through a general lack of knowledge concerning its varied attractions and facilities for summer amusement. To overcome this retarding influence was one of the tasks in which the Hotel Association triumphed, and the work is being carried on. The Hotel Association has been the inspiration for numerous movements of a nature beneficial to the resort, and through the work of its members and notably Mrs. Frank H. Kunst, Robert M. Watt and Harry G. Shreve, the fame of Ocean Grove is going broadcast.

Social Activities at Summer Height

Virtually all of the hotels of Ocean Grove have opened for the season, many of them having welcomed returning patrons and new friends prior to the Memorial Day holidays. In all of them social activities are at midsummer height, and plans for the summer social affairs are being formulated.

One of the first to open this year was the Whitfield, which is again under the management of Charles B. Hermon. Miss Ella Clement has reopened the Majestic, and the Ardmore has been entertaining a flattering patronage for some time.

Mrs. A. W. Crelin, of the Eldorado, opened unusually early this year, but not too soon for many vacationists, who have already made it their headquarters.

The Queen, Surf Avenue House, the Le Chevalier, the La Pierre, Ocean House, Ocean Side, the Princeton, Sunset Lodge and the Colonial are included in the list of those now open.

SUNSET ON THE THAMES

Writer Describes December Afternoon Scene in Dear O' London

Surely it would be difficult to find anything to compare with a December afternoon about 4 o'clock, when the sun is giving way to the street lamps and the lights in the shop windows of London, says the Christian Science Monitor. And can a sunset possibly look more beautiful than it often does from Richmond bridge? All through the summer of 1919 the sunsets were remarkable in the Thames valley, but somehow the memory of them fades before the scene on one particular afternoon in the middle of December.

A pervading softness blended the colors together. Delicate pink clouds stretched across the sky, and instead of contrasting, toned with the faint
